Arkansas invention to help production of broilers

J.R. McKinley, who writes the column From This Small Corner for the De Queen Daily Citizen, usually manages to latch onto at least one important piece of news in every edition.

In this case the item comes to him speeded from Arkansas Gazette, but even so he is due credit for this writer missed the Gazette piece entirely.

Editor McKinley reports in the Citizen of Oct. 10 as follows:

I'm guilty of not reading my Sunday Arkansas Gazette past the sports page.

Otherwise I would have seen that big half-page spread in the feature section about Harry Broadwell, an old De Queen boy who has invented a device to draw the droppings on broiler houses.

Without getting into the technicalities, suffice it to say that Harry came up with a deal that automatically closes the curtains (for temperature control, etc.) in broiler houses when it starts to rain.

This might not seem like a big deal when compared to the invention of the wheel, but it's a major breakthrough in the poultry industry.

About 200 of them (Sta-Dri Rain Control Curtain Lift) are now in use in six states and one major poultry company has made installation of the device a requirement on chicken houses owned by farmers who raised chickens for the company.

There are about 40,000 broiler houses in the U.S., so the potential would appear to be almost unlimited. Harry has received inquiries from as far away as Australia.

Harry lives in Hot Springs and manufactures his gadgets there in a home shop.

He also operates a clothing business in Benton and manages a small printing business as well.

Son of Mrs. Claude Hawthorne, he graduated from De Queen high school in 1954. He attended Southern State college and Tazewell Junior college before going to work for the AISC for a few years.

Incidentally, each of the Sta-Dri devices requires about two hours of Harry's time.

He is now making arrangements to have them built by someone else on a subcontract basis.

McClellan votes for cloture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., voted Wednesday for cutting off debate on the anti-busing bill, marking the first time he has ever voted for cloture. He said he took the action because he strongly favored the legislation.

The senator had voted Tuesday against invoking cloture and was the only senator to switch his vote Wednesday. The effort to end debate failed.

"Although the pending anti-busing bill is not as good, nor will it be as effective if enacted, as it should be, I do strongly favor its enactment," McClellan said in a statement on the floor.

"Heretofore, I have never voted for cloture for the simple reason that I believe a democracy functions best when there is free and unlimited debate..." McClellan said. "However, this legislative cloture 'tool' has become a fact of life — a reality — that we in the Senate must live with. Many times during the 30 years I have served in this body it has been used to force a vote on bills that I opposed.

"I have, therefore, concluded that in some instances where I strongly favor legislation that is being blocked by a filibuster, I should use this same 'tool' to bring about a vote on measures that I favor," he said.

McGovern plans to visit state, Mankiewicz says

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, will make a campaign stop in Little Rock and maybe in Fort Smith and Fayetteville, Frank Mankiewicz, national political coordinator of the McGovern campaign, said Wednesday.

The visit will be later this month, but Mankiewicz said he did not have the exact date.

Mrs. Eleanor McGovern, wife of the candidate, was in Little Rock last week and she said she would encourage her husband to make a trip to the state because she thought he had a chance to carry it in the election.

Mankiewicz, predicting McGovern would win the presidency, said he thought the nominee had a "pretty good chance" of carrying Arkansas' electoral votes.

Mankiewicz spoke from Washington to Arkansas newsmen Wednesday via a telephone conference call. He answered questions of newsmen for about 45 minutes. He said McGovern was leading President Nixon at this time in California, Massachusetts and South Dakota, probably was ahead in Rhode Island and the District of Columbia and probably was about even in New York.

Mankiewicz said that while McGovern was not ahead in Arkansas, he felt McGovern would carry the state partially because of Arkansas' record since Reconstruction of never having cast its electoral votes for the Republican nominee and because Arkansians "understand" that their prosperity had fared better under Democrats.

In 1968, the third-party ticket of Gov. George Wallace carried Arkansas.

Mankiewicz said leading Democratic political figures in the state had demonstrated their support for the McGovern-Shriver ticket. Asked if he was satisfied with support given by Gov. Dale Bumpers, who has seemed reserved publicly toward the ticket, Mankiewicz replied that he thought the support from Bumpers and others had been excellent.

The Arkansas visit would be part of a campaign swing to Texas, Mankiewicz said, adding that McGovern had two more trips to Texas planned and would concentrate his campaign efforts in the last few weeks on the major states.

McGovern stopped in Little Rock in June before his nomination, and when asked why McGovern was giving the state so much attention, Mankiewicz replied: "Sen. McGovern is anxious to come down and see if we can carry it. I think we can."

Mankiewicz predicted a

"sharp and dramatic" increase in support for McGovern as the race goes down to the wire. He said the campaign could be compared to the close Truman-Dewey race in 1948 won by President Harry Truman.

Mankiewicz said that if the McGovern campaign at this point was not "right on course, at least it is very close to it."

Mankiewicz discussed McGovern's position on the Vietnam war, saying the Democrat can end the war because he wants to.

He said he thought supporters of Wallace who do not vote for the Schmitt-Anderson American party ticket this year would vote about equally for Nixon and McGovern.

Prisoners turn back prison to officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — After demanding liberty or death, armed inmates at the District of Columbia jail returned early today and released 11 guards held hostage for nearly 24 hours.

The same 50 rioting inmates returned control of the century-old prison's Cell Block 1 to corrections officials after lengthy negotiations and an extraordinary session which was to resume before a federal district court judge here today.

"I just hope," one inmate said of chances for reform at the jail, "I've got to wait and see."

One of the guards, Lt. Charles Wren, suffered a laceration of the head, said prison officials. Others were said to be unharmed.

Their release came in chaotic minutes around midnight while inmates, lawyers, police and newsmen milled in a high-ceilinged room called the jail's rotunda. The guards, and later Corrections Commissioner Kenneth Hardy, had been seized in the early-morning hours Wednesday by inmates who initially had only one demand—freedom—and who declared they were willing to die in their attempt to win it.

Hours of negotiation brought the court hearing late Wednesday. Judge William Bryant ordered a series of reform measures and blacked reprisals against inmates after six of them appeared to air their grievances.

Bryant heard the prisoners' complaints as part of a two-year-old suit seeking reforms at the jail.

Similar rulings have been handed down in Wyoming, Minnesota and New Jersey as well.

At issue is whether the present policy of financing local school district operations through property taxes is equitable to school children living in poor areas where property valuations are low. Arguments against the present plan are geared to the idea that quantity of money available to a school district is sharply related to quality of education provided by the district.

The Texas issue went before the U.S. Supreme Court last year when a three-judge federal panel in San Antonio ruled that the school funding system in Texas is unconstitutional in that it deprives children living in poor school districts equal protection under the 14th Amendment.

The Texas case was actually begun in July 1968 when Demitrio P. Rodriguez complained that his five children in the Edgewood School District were receiving an inferior education. "The schools were run down and we thought the superintendent was to blame," Rodriguez, 48, said.

Bandied together with other parents in the predominantly Mexican-American San Antonio westside district, Rodriguez joined with attorney Arthur Gochman to seek relief. Gochman said he told Rodriguez and the other parents that "no one was taking their money because there was no money to be had."

A lawsuit was filed which resulted in the ruling by the three-judge panel last year.

The state appealed the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court with Texas Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin saying the state would have to raise an additional $2.4 billion a year in order to up its per pupil spending average to the level of the wealthier districts.

"The one-kid, one-buck plan would destroy local autonomy," Martin said.

Martin also opposed another alternative to equalize local school taxes which would take from the rich districts and give to the poor ones.

Should the Supreme Court uphold the ruling of the three-judge panel in San Antonio, it will likely mean every taxpayer in the state, regardless of whether he has school children, will be affected.

Attorney Ross Spator who brought the suit, commented to the League of Women Voters that the evidence "shows" "clearly demonstrates" the state aid to local districts provided by the Minimum Foundation Program has little, if any, equalizing effect...it results in wealthy districts gaining most in state aid per pupil with minimal effort."

Roadside litter problem is aim of Hendrix plan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Sen. Glen Hendrix of Prescott said Wednesday he felt the only way to solve the problem of roadside litter was to place a tax on beverage containers to pay for cleanup operations.

His remark came during a meeting of a committee of the Legislative Council, which asked the state Highway Department to draft a proposal to help combat the problem. State Highway Director Ward Goodman said the agency spent $150,000 last year in picking up litter, most of it bottles and cans thrown on the highway right-of-way. Goodman said the cost was rising.

In other action, the committee called for a study of inequities in the motor vehicle inspection law and suspended further consideration of a study of the possibility of the Highway Department contracting with private firms for more highway maintenance work.

The council's committee on Corporations, Insurance and Banking recommended legislation to require automobile insurance companies to notify a motorist of the reasons his policy is canceled or would not be renewed.

Under current law, a motorist whose policy is not renewed, may obtain the reason under written request, but companies are not required to tell why a policy is canceled.

The committee and the council's Judiciary Committee held a joint meeting Wednesday for a further discussion of the no-fault insurance concept.

Rep. Julian Street of Camden asked the committee to recommend that the 1973 legislature not consider no-fault insurance legislation unless proponents provide cost estimates.

Street said none of the advocates of no-fault insurance had estimated what the proposal would cost Arkansas motorists. Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock, the Judiciary Committee chairman, asked that Street's motion be carried over to the next meeting of the committee. Howell's motion was adopted.

The Judiciary Committee heard a report summarizing the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that struck down the death penalty as it is now administered. The committee voted to determine what groups, if any, were planning to submit state legislation on the death penalty.

Gettin' in a little practice

Without the aid of a bridle (note single rope looped around horse's neck), one of the contestants in the this weekend's Appaloosa Cutting Futurity gets in a little practice with one of the longhorns owned by Binford McRae and Roy Fry. This rider, along with owners of Appaloosa horses from throughout the United States, practiced on Fry's ranch yesterday (Wednesday) prior to today's opening of the three-day Futurity which began this morning (Thursday) at the Fair Park Coliseum. The cutting, roping, and heading and healing events will continue through Saturday night.

Luxurious hotel room 'investment'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has a $400-a-day suite at the Waldorf that doesn't even sleep in. But aides consider it an excellent investment in diplomacy.

Rogers spends about 10 days over a period of three weeks in New York each fall while the U.N. General Assembly is in session. Besides delivering the main U.S. policy speech at the assembly, he meets privately with the foreign ministers and other statesmen from at least half the world.

The secretary plans to conclude this year's private meetings today, talking with top representatives of Chad, Libya, Sweden, Mauritania, Ethiopia and Italy, most of them at 45-minute intervals.

When he flies back to Washington tonight, his spokesman says the 50-year-old Rogers will have conferred with 70 leaders.

Foreign ministers and representatives of major U.S. allies and other world powers were entertained last week at supper in the apartment the secretary owns in a new skyscraper opposite U.N. headquarters. Rogers bought it while practicing law here, before he became secretary of state, and lives there when he is in the city.

Eastern stewardess is guest at Hope classes

By RICKY FAWCETT, TIM CORNELIUS
Journalism Students

"A stewardess' life is not as glamorous as you might think. It is hard, hard work," Mrs. Carole Hawthorne, Eastern Airlines stewardess told members of the Hope High School Journalism I and home economics classes recently.

Mrs. Hawthorne, formerly Carole Jean Gilliam, attended Yerger High School one year and was graduated from Lincoln High School at Washington. "It was a long road after I left Washington," she said. Her stops included the Western Union office in Hope, Hot Springs, and Kansas City, where she attended night classes for college credit.

About three years ago she went to work for Eastern becoming one of their 5,000 stewardesses and stewards. In training school at Miami she was voted "Miss Gibson Girl" (best all around) by her classmates.

She gave a pre-flight demonstration, in which she told about the oxygen masks and life preservers, taking her passengers on her favorite five and one-half hour flight from New York to Mexico City.

"I like the 727 Stretch because it is convenient, big, easy. It's just nice," she said when questioned about her favorite plane.

Among the many people on her flights have been Roberta Flack and Jim Nabors, U.S. Reps. Julian Bond and Shirley Chisholm, and Mrs. Coretta King, wife of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King.

Eastern is the official charter airlines for the New York Jets and Miami Dolphins, so she has flown with them, too.

Once she had a male passenger who insisted on keeping three brief cases with him. This being suspicious, Mrs. Hawthorne reported him to the captain. As it turned out, the briefcases contained uncut diamonds. "I was so embarrassed," she said.

Mrs. Hawthorne will resign soon to join her husband Charles who has been assigned

McGovern blasts administration

BOSTON (AP)—Responding to Republican criticism of his Vietnam peace proposals, Sen. George McGovern says the Nixon administration is "willing to surrender hundreds of American prisoners of war to another four years of captivity."

And he criticized the latest round of secret Paris peace talks, saying, "I am tired of secret negotiations that yield propaganda for the administration but do not yield peace for the people of America or the people of Indochina."

The Democratic nominee kept up his attack on President Nixon's Vietnam politics in a speech to a cheering crowd that filled Boston's 6,000-seat National Guard Armory for a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner Wednesday night.

McGovern was joined by an array of Kennedys—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who introduced him; Jean Kennedy

Smith, the senator's sister; Joseph P. Kennedy III, eldest son of the late Robert F. Kennedy; and Carolina Kennedy, the 14-year-old daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy.

It was Caroline's first appearance at a political gathering. Continuing his campaigning in the Boston area, McGovern switched his fire to economic issues, saying the Nixon administration has fought improvements pushed by congressional Democrats in the areas of minimum wage, Social Security, and pension reform.

"These are things an administration that cared about workers would not do," he said in a speech prepared for a breakfast of labor leaders today.

McGovern contended that "this administration has loaded our public offices with big-business bosses," noting that the secretary of Labor and mediators-service head are former aerospace executives while "the public members" of the Pay Board "come from big steel, from big oil and from inside the Nixon administration."

After the Boston speech, the Democratic nominee planned to fly to Minneapolis for several appearances, including the first in a series of phone-in telethons, before going on to Fargo, N.D., and Seattle.

On Wednesday, McGovern appeared before Evangelical ministers and students in suburban Wheaton, Ill., and made a luncheon speech to some 1,000 of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's precinct captains.

Senate vote on Abrams is slated today

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nomination of Gen. Creighton Abrams to be Army chief of staff goes to a Senate vote today with some senators saying he should share responsibility for unauthorized bombing raids against North Vietnam.

But few senators doubted that Abrams' nomination would be approved by a wide margin.

Abrams was U.S. commander in Vietnam during the time the unauthorized raids were ordered by Air Force Gen. John D. Lavelle. Abrams told the Senate Armed Service Committee probe he was unaware of the exact nature of the bombings.

"What we are being told in the case of Gen. Abrams," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., "is that ignorance is innocence."

Lavelle was relieved of his command of the 7th Air Force last April, and superiors above Abrams, including Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said they had been unaware of what Lavelle was doing.

"I am not satisfied that Gen. Abrams' superiors up the chain of command are as innocent of what was occurring as they purport to be," said Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, senior Republican on Armed Service. "I am not convinced that Gen. Lavelle alone is the culprit."

Additionally, said Mrs. Smith, Abrams failed to do his duty in not knowing of the raids.

"It was his job to know what was happening, and his failure to ascertain that the rules imposed by the commander-in-chief (the President) were being followed is nonfeasance by anyone's definition," Sen. Smith said.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., another committee member, said the testimony of Abrams, Lavelle, Moorer and others in the probe bore out "my apprehensions of a person (Lavelle) being cut out and being made a patsy."

Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, said he supports Abrams' nomination but that the probe showed there had been serious violations of law, orders, regulations "that cry out for remedy."

However, Hughes went on, "the main question before the committee (which approved Abrams) was whether he knowingly participated in any way in these serious violations. I, for one, do not believe he did."

Throughout the probe, Lavelle contended he had been under pressure to be more aggressive with protective-reactive strikes at a time the North Vietnamese were building up for their April offensive and before the White House ordered renewed heavy bombing of the North.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., deplored the rules of engagement U.S. forces have always had to work under in Vietnam as he spoke in support of Abrams.

"Here we see a war being lost because the civilians had too much control over it," Goldwater said.

Committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., called for a wide margin of approval for Abrams, praising him as "a general with mud on his boots...a man of utmost integrity."

Proxmire said Lavelle's punishment—relief of command—was "a tap on the wrist." A private would not have gotten off so easily, he said.

Egypt now has more than 8 million acres of farmland producing crops ranging from dates to cotton.

Nobel winners are named

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The 1972 Nobel Prize for physiology or medicine was awarded jointly today to Gerald Maurice Edelman of the Rockefeller University in New York and Rodney R. Porter of the University of Oxford, England, for their discoveries concerning the chemical structure of antibodies.

The prize this year is worth $38,100. Antibodies is the collective name of a group of blood proteins that play an important part in the defense against infections and in the development of several different diseases.

Largely unknown until 1959, their nature was explained by the work of Edelman and Porter who, according to the Royal Caroline Institute, "laid a firm foundation for truly rational research" in immunology.

Edelman, born in New York in 1929, received his doctor of medicine degree at the University of Pennsylvania in 1954 and his Ph.D. at the Rockefeller Institute in New York in 1960. He has served at the Massachusetts General Hospital and, since 1957, at the Rockefeller Institute, where he has been a professor since 1960.

He is the 42nd American to receive a Nobel Medicine Prize in the past 60 years. The United States has strongly dominated this field of late. Since 1966, Americans have been awarded the Medicine Prize each year, alone or jointly with others.

The prize, along with prizes for literature, physics and chemistry, economics and peace were established under the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite. It already has been announced that no Peace Prize will be awarded this year. The prize for literature will be announced Oct. 19, physics and chemistry Oct. 20 and economics Oct. 25.

Porter, born in 1917 at Ashton, England, obtained his scientific education at Liverpool University and at Cambridge where he received his Ph.D. in 1948. After war service, he worked at the National Institute for Medical Research in London and at St. Mary's Hospital, where he was Pfizer professor of immunology from 1960 to 1967. Since then he has been Whitley professor at the University of Oxford.

Porter received the Gairdner Foundation Award of Merit in 1966 and the Karl Landsteiner Memorial Award from the American Association of Blood Banks in 1968.

PARIS (AP)—Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser for national security affairs, left Paris for Washington today after five days in Paris talking with North Vietnamese negotiators about a halt in the Vietnamese war.

Never before had Kissinger ever stayed more than two days in Paris for his private conversations with Le Duc Tho, a member of Hanoi's Politburo, and Xuan Thuy, chief of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks. No word of any kind leaked out in Paris about the private talks.

Caroline makes appearance for Demo candidate

BOSTON (AP)—Caroline Kennedy has made a surprise visit to a rally for Sen. George McGovern and her grandmother, Rose Kennedy, will make a rare campaign appearance for the Democratic presidential nominee.

Caroline, 15, daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy, wore a jet-black pants suit as she walked onto the stage at Commonwealth Armory Wednesday night with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his wife, Joan.

Caroline spoke often with Mrs. Kennedy and frequently applauded speeches during the fund-raising rally by her uncle and McGovern, but she did not speak to a crowd estimated at 6,000.

It was the first reported public appearance made by Caroline since she enrolled at Concord, where she is guarded by four Secret Service agents and a school administration that refuses to confirm whether she is actually a pupil there.

Hanoi claims administration prolongs war

PARIS (AP)—North Vietnam said today that the position of the Nixon administration "prolongs the deadlock of the Paris conference and prolongs the war."

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates to the peace talks made clear their public position had not changed despite four days of secret meetings here between U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi negotiators Xuan Thuy and Le Duc Tho.

"The time has come for the Nixon administration to...move in the direction of peace," said Nguyen Minh Vy, standing in for Thuy. "Naturally, this requires of the United States the cessation of bombardments, minings and blockade of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, the abandonment of the 'Vietnamization' of the war, cessation of all military activities in South Vietnam and cessation of all support of the Nguyen Van Thieu administration."

Vy said whether peace will be established quickly or not depends on the U.S. attitude toward the declaration last month by the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary government in which it reviewed its basic demands.

Puerto Ricans reportedly "have spoken in the free exercise of their options," she said, while Cubans "have not seen ballot boxes in their country in more than a decade."

Alarcon reported that her presence on the U.S. delegation proved that Puerto Rico was a colony and was in line with a U.S. habit of appointing "movie stars, astronauts and clowns" to the assembly delegation.

Alarcon in his speech claimed "a transcendent victory" in having induced the U.N. Special Committee on Colonialism on Aug. 25 to recognize the Puerto Ricans' "right to self-determination and independence" and to order a study concerning Puerto Rico.

LR investor object of warrant

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An arrest warrant was issued Wednesday for Bill Starke, a West Memphis bond investor, in connection with $613,446 missing from the North Little Rock Police Pension and Relief Fund.

Pros. Atty. Jim Guy Tucker said the money and bonds that were missing consisted of about $150,000 in cash and an undisclosed amount of checks and municipal bonds. Some of the money apparently was taken from the pension fund by the use of "forged" sale and confirmation slips for bonds and counterfeit securities, Tucker said.

The discrepancies fund were discovered during a routine audit. Tucker said the money apparently disappeared during a period from early January through Sept. 30 of this year.

Tucker said Starke, 35, last was seen at the Memphis airport at noon Tuesday. "We understand that he has had intentions of returning to British Honduras."

What's in a name of a cut of meat

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Just what does the modern slogan "the consumer's right to know" have to do with the buying of meat?

For one example, there are more than a thousand retail names for cuts of meat. Yet there are basically only eight wholesale cuts from the meat animal. This means that many different names refer to exactly the same retail cut.

"Surely this incredible array of fancy names lowers the confidence of the average shopper. It is devastatingly confusing. But today the meat industry is being seriously challenged to simplify meat cut identification. Consumers are demanding it," says David H. Stroud, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

"It is just common sense—not only from the consumer's standpoint, but also from the industry's—that we develop a common national system of names for retail cuts. Then a man or woman could go into any store anywhere in the country and get exactly what he or she wants by simply asking for it by the generally accepted name," says Stroud.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board is active in this campaign for national terms of identification.

Massachusetts has a new law this year. It requires butchers to state the basic meat, beef, lamb or pork, and the primal cut, such as chuck, round, loin, etc. After these have been stated, the butcher can add his own designation within reason.

Many names such as "daisy roast" have an almost traditional reality to Massachusetts people, for example.

Connecticut is thinking about such a law. New York state put its new law into effect in July.

Before the New York state law was passed, names of meat cuts had been acquired by usage, caprice, merchandising zeal and mere chance. The new law is designed to help consumers shop with confidence. It gives specific definitions for many different cuts.

For example, "T-bone steak" means meat that comes from the short loin of cattle and has not less than one-half inch diameter of tenderloin muscle. "Porterhouse steak" also comes from short loin but has not less than 1 1/4 inches in diameter of tenderloin muscle.

According to the new New York state law, no one can sell packaged meat unless the label clearly states the "true name" of that cut. The "true name" has two parts: one identifies the species of animal, such as beef or lamb. The other part tells the primal area or the section of the animal from which the cut came—such as tongue, heart, shoulder, brisket, round, flank, etc. Only one of these primal areas may be listed on the meat label. A name in addition to the true name "may be used as long as it approximately describes the cut or the use or the cooking method." But any additional names cannot be false or confusing.

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Gap

Dear Ray:

I've got a sort of pixie face. I read somewhere that girls with small, turned-up noses and big eyes were apt to fall in love and think later. In other words, they could be easy pushovers for persuasive guys.

Girls with longer noses, the article read, knew a stinker when they met one. True? —A LITTLE WORRIED

Dear Worried:

Don't believe every survey you read. Maybe the "researcher" figured a long nose was better for smelling a rat. Or it could be he just discovered small-nosed girls are easier to kiss—thus get more offers "they can't refuse." —SUE

Dear Worried:

Never heard of this small nose-big eye survey, but be that as it may: pushovers are girls whose "No's" are NOT as pronounced as their "Ayes." —HELEN

Dear Helen:

In a recent column, you used the terms "latent homosexual" and "closet queen."

Please explain what they mean.

Also, would a male with breasts that seem to be getting bigger and female-type, tend to be faggy? —PUZZLED AND WORRIED

Dear P And W:

A "latent" homosexual does not actively seek mates of the same sex, but is bent in that direction. A "closet queen" is a secret gay who only comes out with his homosexual friends. One who "comes out" no longer hides his preferences from the straight world.

Boys' breasts often become enlarged when they enter puberty. It's part of growing up and has absolutely NOTHING to do with "being faggy." Also some males naturally have larger breasts than do others. Stop worrying! —HELEN

Razorbacks concentrate on passing

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks concentrated on their passing game in a short workout Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's Southwest Conference tilt with Baylor.

Coach Frank Broyles said the practice was shortened because temperatures climbed into the mid 80s.

Captains for Saturday's game against Baylor will be Mike Saint, Tom Reed, Lee Williams and Don Wunderly.

Mrs. Court fails at comeback

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Margaret Court tripped up on her own comeback trail Wednesday when her legs gave out during a third-set battle with Jeanne Evert, a 15-year-old tennis whiz fast emerging from behind the shadow of her famous sister's backhand.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Court, back on the women's pro tennis circuit this season following the birth of her first child, dropped the first set 7-4 to Chris Evert's younger sister during the first round of the $100,000 Virginia Slims Tennis Championship.

But Margaret, who'd already pocketed $26,000 after two victories and two second places on the 1972 tour, fought back for an easy 6-3 second set victory.

As the clay court contest wore on in the 90-degree Florida sun, the Australian veteran looked like a sure winner as she built up a 5-2 lead in the third set.

AP predictions

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock Central will have the support of at least three other teams Friday night when the Tigers take on North Little Rock Ole Main.

Ole Main leads the Class AAAA conference with a 4-0 record.

Central has lost once in conference play as have Little Rock Hall, North Little Rock Northeast and Little Rock Catholic. Hall and Northeast lost to Ole Main.

Central, loaded with speed, will have to beat one of the top defensive teams in the state. Ole Main has allowed only seven points against AAAA competition.

The Ole Main defense and tailback Charles Walker should be too much for the Tigers.

OLE MAIN 14, LR CENTRAL 7.

Anytime you mention defense, Jonesboro High School gets into the act.

This week, Jonesboro's defense will be tested by Little Rock McClellan in a Class AAA-East showdown.

Jonesboro is 2-0 in the conference and McClellan is 1-0. They are the only unbeaten, untied teams in conference play.

Jonesboro has given up a meager 27 points while posting a 5-0 record. The opponents have averaged 1.3 yards a play. Jonesboro may be able to live by defense alone.

JONESBORO 10, LR MCCLELLAN 7.

The big game of the week in Class AA matches Magnolia and Malvern. Magnolia is 3-0 in Region 7AA and 6-0 for the season. Malvern is 4-0 and 5-1 for the season, losing only to top-ranked Hot Springs.

Malvern's J. R. Ross has rushed for more than 1,000 yards this year and should get his share against Magnolia.

MALVERN 14, MAGNOLIA 7.

Last Week's percentage was .785.

Here are other predictions involving AAAA, AAA and AA schools around the state:

Dollarway 13, LR Mills 7; Watson Chapel 20, Lake Hamilton 12; Morrilton 27, Atkins 13; Cabot 20, Altheimer 7; Lakeview 13, Bryant 6; White Hall 19, Lonoke 7; Sheridan 27, Searcy 13; Camden 19, Crossett 13; Fordyce 20, Fairview 19; Hope 27, Stamps 12; Dumas 16, McGehee 13; Hamburg 14, Eldora 8.

Tigers make comeback, win in 10th

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Freehan was worried he'd suddenly sent the Detroit Tigers packing to their already delayed winter vacations.

And Mickey Lolich figured today he'd have a chance to finish cutting his grass.

Instead, due to a heart-stopping 10th inning 4-3 Detroit comeback victory over Oakland Wednesday, they and their Tiger teammates find themselves one win away from their second American League pennant in five years.

Today's Oakland-Detroit winner will head for Cincinnati for Saturday's opening game of the World Series. The Cincinnati Reds beat Pittsburgh 4-3 Wednesday on a ninth-inning wild pitch to capture the National League pennant three games to two over the Pirates.

NL Castoff Woodie Fryman was Tiger Manager Billy Martin's choice to pitch today's deciding game against John "Blue Moon" Odum, who shut out Detroit and Ryman 5-0 Sunday in Oakland.

Fryman, 32, posted a 10-3 record after being purchased

Aug. 2 from Philadelphia. Wednesday, Oakland came unglued in the 10th and redeemed catcher Freehan from two embarrassing plays.

Freehan missed a suicide squeeze bunt in the eighth inning which caught Dick McAuliffe off third base with one out. And in the two-run Athletics' 10th, Freehan let a throw from the outfield get away during a play at the plate as the tie-breaking run scored.

Lolich gave up just five hits before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the ninth.

One of the five was Mike Epstein's solo homer in the seventh which tied the game 1-1. McAuliffe had homered for Detroit off Hunter in the third.

"I don't deny it. I thought they had us," admitted Lolich, who had been in the clubhouse during the A's rally in the 10th off reliever Chuck Seelbach.

Gonzalo Marquez, whose pinch single off Seelbach Saturday tied the game for the A's, started their 10th-inning rally with a pinch single.

Matty Alou followed with a double off the left field fence. The relay throw to the plate got past Freehan and Alou reached third. Ted Kubiak seemingly sealed Detroit's fate with a bloop RBI single.

Then McAuliffe greeted reliever Bob Locker with a single to open the Tiger 10th. Al Kaline followed with another, then Joe Horlen came in and wild pitched the runners along before walking pitch hitter Gates Brown to load the bases.

He hit a grounder to third baseman Sal Bando, scoring McAuliffe. Bando threw the possible double play ball to second baseman Gene Tenace, who dropped the throw after Brown barreled into him.

Reds grab NL pennant

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds used everything but hex signs in winning the National League pennant Wednesday—movies, a bad-hop double, a nod from Johnny Bench's mother, and a wild pitch that allowed the winning run to score.

The Reds won 4-3 over Eastern Division champion Pittsburgh by scoring two runs in the last of the ninth, one on a towering home run by Bench and the other on a wild pitch by Pirates' pitcher Bob Moose. Pinchrunner George Foster sped home with the run that turned Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium into bedlam.

The Reds' victory actually started during an hour and 28-minute rain delay before the game got underway. The broad shouldered Bench, National League home run champion, was disgusted with his inability to hit a homer in the first four of the best-of-five game playoff. He decided to do something about it.

Bench stood amid a swarm of reporters in the champagne drenched Reds' dressing room, explaining that during the rain he looked at films of his two regular season hot streaks. He had helped the Reds move into first place in May with seven home runs in five days. Then, in September, he socked seven in seven games as Cincinnati won the West by 10 1/2 games. "I noticed that I wasn't crouching as much and had the bat out further during the hot streaks," Bench said.

When Bench came to bat leading off the Reds' ninth he said he was thinking about hitting a home run. He also got some psychic help from his mother, Mrs. Katy Bench, sitting behind the Reds' dugout.

"I looked over my shoulder and saw mamma nodding her head," Bench said as he dodged an effort by a teammate to douse him with the bubbly stuff. "I know what she was nodding—please hit one for me." I always listen to mother. I don't ever want to do anything wrong for her."

Bench ripped a one-ball, two-strike pitch that curved foul into the stands in left field. Then he laced a palm ball from Pirates reliever Dave Giusti for an opposite-field home run over the right field wall, tying the score 3-3. Bench led the league with 46 homers, but only one had been to right field. Ironically, that also was hit against Pittsburgh.

After Bench hit his home run, Tony Perez and Denis Menke singled. George Foster, who ran for Perez, moved to third on Cesar Geronimo's long drive to right. After Chaney popped out, Hal McRae batted for winning pitcher Clay Carroll.

Bob Moose had relieved Giusti and had a one-ball, one-strike count on McRae.

"I was watching the pitches carefully," Foster said. "He (Moose) was throwing a lot of breaking stuff to the plate."

Moose's third pitch to McRae bounced over Pirate catcher Manny Sanguillen, and Foster raced home with the winning run as the Reds' players went wild, along with the crowd of 41,887.

Hogs-Horns TV decision not final

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An official of ABC television reported Wednesday that no final decision has been made on whether to televise the Arkansas-Texas football game.

It had been reported earlier that ABC had advised its member stations that the game on Oct. 21 in Austin, Tex., would be televised.

John Richardson

A new home

By CLAY HENRY

Jon Richardson has found a new home.

A tailback his first 26 games as a Razorback, Richardson was moved to fullback just before the TCU game last week.

Richardson blocked and ran well, but he was a big factor in the success of the Razorback passing game which accounted for 304 yards against the Horned Frogs.

He had eight pass receptions for 80 yards in the Hogs' 27-13 come-from-behind victory.

"That's a lot of passes to a fullback," he said, "but they (TCU) weren't respecting our fullback as a pass receiver. We used the split backfield to get both the fullback and the tailback into pass patterns," Richardson said. "It opened the defense some for our passing game."

Richardson does not think he's adjusted completely to his new spot.

"I'm having trouble running the inside handoff in the veer offense," he said. "I didn't do very well in the TCU ball game. The play is there, you just have to know how to hit that crease."

Richardson insists the four-touchdown spurt in the last 20 minutes of the TCU game will give the Razorbacks confidence for the future.

"We looked right during the last of the TCU game," he said.

"We showed we have some maturity."

Richardson, a Little Rock native from Horace Mann High School (now a junior high), has been plagued by injuries his last two seasons at Arkansas. He broke a leg in the third game last year and then broke his wrist near the end of the year.

A slight ankle injury at the start of this season kept Richardson from obtaining full speed.

"I think I'm finally in shape though," Richardson said. "I did a lot of running last week, and I didn't get as tired during the TCU game."

JOAN RYAN

Zone ends pros' passing fancy

By JOAN RYAN

Remember the 1960s when Y. A. Tittle was quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers? Just when the 49er fans had conceded defeat, The Bald Eagle would haul back and heave an impossible bomb. The ball looped over defenders and sailed 40 or maybe 50 yards.

Then, receiver R. C. Owens went into his "Alley-Oop" act. He stretched up like a plastic man to spear the ball for a last-second touchdown. The crowd came unhinged.

Alas, Tittle's bomb is dead. It was shelved during the 1960s with the advent of gorilla-sized defensive linemen, blitzing safeties and the waffled fretwork of the zone defense.

Not only has the bomb been retired, the forward pass is all but obsolete. Replaced by dinky flares and screens, the pass of the 1970s is really nothing but an extension of the hand-off. Pro and college quarterbacks today look like kids tossing beanbags into a wastebasket.

A few oldtimers still thrill crowds by putting the ball downfield. The 49ers' John Brodie, Oakland's Daryle Lammonica and Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs pretend the zone doesn't exist. But their banners are frayed.

Newcomers stand in the wings anxious to replace the go-for-broke pass with a new error-free, let-the-defense-do-it philosophy.

The comers are men like Ken Anderson of Cincinnati, Don Horn of Denver and Jim Plunkett of the New England Patriots. Archie Manning of New Orleans and Dan Pastorini of Houston, Mike Phipps of Cleveland, Ken Stabler of Oakland, Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh, John Reeves of Philadelphia and Scott Hunter of Green Bay.

Some of them will be stars, but whether there will be a super star status for quarterbacks in this decade is still questionable. The way things are going quarterbacks may become as obscure as an offensive tackle.

I called up one of my old-time favorites, Tittle, the other day, and he confirmed my direst prediction for the new boys who are waiting in the wings: The gambling quarterback as the star of the show has been replaced by a computer coded machine-like football team which relies more on defense than offense.

"In the good old days, the quarterback was the whole show," he said. "But football no longer needs a Bobby Layne type, a player who was coach on the field. Today's players are better prepared than we were. They have more tools to work with. They're programmed with more information, aided and drilled by 12-man coaching staffs which swap films and have computers to draw up game plans with Pentagon precision."

"In my day," Tittle continued, "we had maybe three coaches, and our information going into the game was from some old scout who would sit down and tell us what he claimed he saw at last week's game. We played by the seat of our pants."

Tittle raves about a few newcomers like Plunkett, Bradshaw and Pastorini who have displayed the strength and accuracy of a classic passing arm. But he claims that today the name of the game is defense.

A team with a great defense can win now with a mediocre quarterback. How else can you explain the appearance of Minnesota's Joe Kapp and Baltimore's Earl Morrall (now with Miami) in the Super Bowl?

But defense and a conservative offense that minimizes error are about as exciting to watch as a cluck of chickens pecking corn.

Tittle extended a ray of hope for us old-timers. "I think people will begin to pick apart the zone this year," he said. But I think he was indulging in some wishful thinking for a long lost art.

"I don't know," he continued, contradicting himself. "I went to an Oakland game a few weeks ago. You just don't get electrified at games anymore. I didn't know a single man in their backfield. You used to know that Green Bay meant Taylor and Hornung but now it's more like a well-oiled unit. Maybe I'm just getting older," he said, his voice trailing off.

LAKERS ROUT KINGS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Whether they're called the Cincinnati Royals or the Kansas City-Omaha Kings makes no difference to the champion Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association. They beat them.

The Lakers routed the Kings, now the Royals, before 8,200 at Omaha Wednesday night 120-94 in their opening game of the new season.

Ailing Trevino still favored in tourney

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Lee Trevino battled an aching throat and a wayward putter today in his bid to dethrone South Africa's Gary Player from the World Championship of Match Play Golf Tournament.

The annual Piccadilly Tournament began with doubts over the fitness of the 31-year-old American, favored by British bookies.

A doctor was due to deliver an early morning verdict on Trevino, who spent most of Wednesday in bed instead of at practice after developing a respiratory virus in the chilly rains that have swept the Westworth course near London all week.

However, Trevino, former U.S. Open champion and current holder of the British Open title for the second straight year, was expected to show up for his opening match against fellow American Doug Sanders.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"Damn the torpedoes, go ahead full speed!" was said by Admiral David Farragut when one of his ships sank after hitting a mine (then called torpedo) causing his fleet to halt and draw heavy fire from Confederate forts and ships. The World Almanac says. The incident occurred in Mobile harbor, Ala., in 1864, and Farragut's command turned a potential defeat into a victory.

States agree on fishing. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri and Kentucky officials have agreed on reciprocal fishing privileges on the Missouri River, in a move to benefit residents of both states.

Sport and commercial fishermen licensed by either state can fish in the flowing common boundary portion of the Mississippi on the fishing license of either state.

Another reason for lottery. SAN JUAN (UPI)—Producing extra government revenues is one main purpose of Puerto Rico's 36-year-old weekly lottery. Another is to put extra cash into the pockets of thousands of needy persons who make commissions on the sale of tickets. For fiscal year 1972, about 6,500 such lottery agents will take 15.25 per cent of the lottery's $172.2 million gross income.

LISBON (AP) — Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, 80-year-old exiled Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, has arrived by plane from Vienna to attend special services at the Shrine of Fatima this week.

The Cardinal, who spent 18 years in refuge in the American embassy in Budapest after the collapse of the Hungarian uprising in 1956, will be able to see stations of the cross named after him in 1964 while he was still inside the embassy.

The stations depicting the passion and death of Christ were built with donations from Hungarian Catholics in other countries throughout the world, most of them refugees from communism or exiles from their homeland.

year-old Smith, who claims to be the world's oldest living human being, has the opportunity to return as an honored guest of the Liberian government.

A press attache at the Liberian Embassy in Washington, D.C. said in a telephone interview he planned to travel to Birtow today to meet with Smith and try to persuade him to go home for a week's visit.

Smith could not be reached for comment on the offer, but Social Security officer Joe Scarmonek of Lakeland sent a man to break the word to Smith Wednesday.

District B&PW club meeting set

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Objectives in Action is the theme for the National Business and Professional Women's Clubs in 1972-73, and the national president, Jeanne C. Squire, says that it means achieving "a better business woman for a better business world."

With this in mind, materials, projects, ideas, conferences and seminars are being readied all over the country. One such meeting will be the Southwest District Conference of B & PW Clubs to be held at Perry's Restaurant in Perrytown Oct. 28-29. Mrs. Winifred Ward of Emmet is district director, and Miss Charlene Wiggins of Hope is vice-director. They are expecting delegates to attend from Hope, Arkadelphia, Ashdown, Bradley, Camden, DeQueen, Magnolia, Texarkana, Mena, Prescott, and Stamps-Lewisville.

State President Charlene Tipton and the immediate past president, Bette Grodon, will be among the dignitaries expected for the two-day meeting that will promote, cooperate, and extend the Objectives in Action. Besides seminars, panel discussions, and talks by leaders in the organization, a "fun night" is planned for Oct. 28.

Back in the late 1920s, a few years after the Hope B & PW Club was organized, a district meeting was held here.

Looking at old programs and plans for current ones we see there is the ever-present idea of "speaking out; women helping women; buying and investing wisely; saving nature, saving humanity."

The Hope B & PW Club will bear this in mind during its observance next week, October 15-22, of National Business Women's Week. A week of activities will be launched at a breakfast at the Heritage House at 7 a.m. on Monday, October 16 and will be given special emphasis at a coffee in the Chamber of Commerce Conference Room on Thursday, October 19. The public is invited to "take a coffee break with the B & PW Club" October 19, 9 to 11 a.m. or 2 to 4 p.m.

UA professor visits Hope's math teachers

Dr. William R. Orton of the University of Arkansas mathematics department visited with Yerger Junior High School and Hope High School math teachers two days last week.

On Wednesday night the group had dinner at the Town and Country Restaurant followed by a session in which the specialized services program for Hope was discussed.

Hope has been selected by the state Department of Education to participate for four years in the program which is funded by the National Science Foundation. It is one of seven funded in the United States. The purpose is to take a new look at math and science programs in secondary schools. This particular one covers the state of Arkansas and is the only one that covers an entire state. Fifteen other schools in specialized services phase of the combination program include Calico Rock, Wynne, Hampton, DeQueen.

Dr. Orton, director of the state-wide organization through the University of Arkansas, will be a consultant to the Hope system in the specialized services phase.

"I will work directly with the mathematics department staff of Hope High School and Yerger Junior High School, visiting classes, learning all I can about the Hope program. In fact, I will spend about two weeks in all here in Hope at different times during the year. I am very impressed with the Hope mathematics department, and it is apparent they have a very strong on-going program," he said.

One of the most effective bids in match-point duplicate is the premature save. At least, it is effective when it pushes your opponents one trick beyond their limit.

It turns out to be a disaster when, instead of being stampeded into the stratosphere, they stop to double you and it turns out that they couldn't make a game.

East's jump to five diamonds was one of those premature saves. He decided that his opponents could make four spades and that the loss his partner would take at five diamonds doubled would be less than the score for a vulnerable game.

He was pretty sure that if he bid four diamonds and then five he would be doubled and he hoped that his quick jump to that contract might get him a reprieve.

It did. South decided that five spades would wheel in and that he couldn't set five diamonds enough to cover the loss of the game.

He was right to that extent. West would be down 500 at five diamonds doubled.

He was wrong in his major premise. He couldn't make spades since the defense collected a diamond and two clubs before he could gain the lead.

MCKENZIE AND WEISENBERGER

European travel topic at Hope Kiwanis Club

Kiwanians Jim McKenzie and Royce Weisenberger, both of whom recently toured parts of the European Continent and in the British Isles, reported on their trips as they presented the program at Tuesday's Kiwanis Club meeting. They were presented by Kiwanian F.C. Crow.

Dr. and Mrs. McKenzie, their daughter Janet, her husband Buddy Nix, and daughter Betsy, took an unguided tour while Judge and Mrs. Weisenberger took a guided tour, both parties leaving from New York on different dates and both flying the three hundred-plus passenger 747 jets.

The McKenzies, among other places, visited Amsterdam, Copenhagen, The Hague, and in Scotland and England. The Weisenbergers visited Portugal, Spain, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, and England.

Both speakers commented on the cleanliness and order they noted in most of the places visited, and on the excellent highway system spreading throughout much of Europe. The people in most places seemed prosperous and contented. Most of Europe caters to the American tourist, and depends on this source for some of the prosperity.

Weisenberger found some of his father's people in Germany with whom he had an opportunity to visit. Commenting on Paris, he said, "You've heard a lot of stories about Paris and its people. Well, it's everything they say it is."

Both speakers served in the European theater of operations during World War II, and both commented concerning the rebuilding job that has been done in Europe. Few battle scars remain. However, in England each year the Battle of Britain is celebrated, and though the travelers didn't see each other while overseas, both parties were in London during this year's celebration.

Weisenberger completed his remarks by stating, "Freedom really means something to the people of the countries we visited."

Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. F.C. Crow, and Roger Nunn were guests at Tuesday's meeting.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Quit drinking to solve problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My husband drinks heavily on weekends and it makes him quite sick. He complains afterwards about his stomach burning. For relief he drinks milk, takes Maalox and soda water. Could you possibly give me some advice as to what the burning and bloating is. Is it a stomach ulcer? I would appreciate any advice as I can't get him to a doctor.

Dear Reader—The obvious answer to his problem is to quit drinking. If this is an every weekend affair, he probably needs help. Your letter suggests that he functions all right otherwise, and I presume that his weekend drinking signifies that he is gainfully employed during the week.

Weekend alcoholics aren't necessarily new. That's what gave rise to the term "lost weekend." He really should see a doctor to find out about his general physical condition and get some help from him in stopping drinking. Short of this, I would recommend that he contact Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and see if they can help him with his problem. Make no mistake about it, anyone who drinks regularly on weekends to the point that they make themselves sick does have an alcohol problem.

The stomach complaint you describe is typical of individuals who overindulge in alcohol. It is called alcoholic gastritis, which literally means inflammation of the stomach caused by alcohol. The lining of the stomach becomes reddened, engorged and irritated. By the way, individuals can have gastritis even though they don't use alcohol.

Of course, there's no guarantee that your husband doesn't have an ulcer and it would require a good medical examination to establish its presence or absence. I think it's a safe bet though that he at least does have alcoholic gastritis.

Dear Dr. Lamb—If a person is taking thyroid medicine and also birth control pills, does the thyroid medicine prevent the birth control pills from acting? My doctor says no but a friend has had two different doctors tell her it will.

Dear Reader—Your doctor is right. Birth control pills are composed of the female hormones produced by the ovaries during the normal menstrual cycle. These hormones, through a complex mechanism, block the ovaries from producing another egg (ovum) and in this way prevent pregnancy. When the amount of these hormones is diminished, the ovary is activated and fires off another egg. The usual female cycle literally then is a rising and falling of the female hormones. When the hormones fall, menstruation occurs and the next cycle to release another egg begins. By providing female hormones regularly and withdrawing them for the menstrual period, birth control is accomplished. Giving thyroid tablets will not interfere with this action between female hormones and the ovaries.

New bomber developed by USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military intelligence sources say Russia may have started quantity production of a new super-sonic bomber believed capable of reaching the United States. U.S. officials have been monitoring Soviet progress in testing the new swing-wing bomber, code-named Backfire, for about three years.

Revenue-sharing checks to be in mail this month

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress puts the finishing touches on a revenue-sharing bill, a Nixon administration task force hopes to get the program off to a speedy start by mailing 39,000 checks totaling $2.6 billion by the end of the month.

The task force, made up of about 15 officials borrowed from several agencies, has been on the job since early summer, trying to smooth out details of the $30-billion, five-year plan to aid states, cities and counties.

Asked why the government is pushing to get the checks to local governments about a week before the Nov. 7 presidential election, Deputy Treasury Secretary Charles E. Walker said, "They need the money. Haven't you heard?"

Walker noted that the administration proposed its revenue-sharing legislation three years ago. If the bill passes this week as expected, he said, "Why keep it (the money) here?" A compromise version approved by House and Senate conferees is awaiting a final vote by both chambers.

The first checks will cover the period from January through June of this year since the bill makes revenue-sharing retroactive to last Jan. 1. The second checks are expected to be mailed next Jan. 1.

Although there have been several examples of errors and obsolete information fed into government computers, the task force says it now has fairly accurate estimates of the money local governments are expected to get. The team is headed by Ed. Fox, finance director of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Walker said adjustments will be handled in the January payment and in subsequent checks, if required.

On Wednesday, the House passed and sent to the Senate a $4-million appropriation for administrative expenses of the revenue-sharing program.
